Tasting Notes – Fragrant anisette, black currants, garam masala and black licorice are united together in one little bottle. Briery notes of roasted herbs de Provence runs into chocolate and kirsch, with a sprinkle of fresh cracked red peppercorns. This is no ordinary Zin, deep in color, driven by terroir -- the exotic spice and texture sets your mind on a journey of unequalled proportion.

“Arrowhead Mountain Vineyard is organically farmed by hand. The clone planted there is called Cooke, as it originates from the Cooke Vineyard a mile up the road. At 400 feet in elevation, the vineyard's fruit tastes more "old vine" like than the vineyard's age would lead you to believe.” – Jeff Cohn
